

Resolution presented by the delegation of Jordan

Theme	2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development
Subject	Animals' right to labour laws
The General Assembly,
Alarmed	That reports of animal abuse at touristic sites show that thousands of animals are cruelly beaten, mistreated, deprived of basic necessities, and laboured to death
Appalled	That more than 1.6 billion animals are abused to death every year, and more than 500 million alone suffer to entertain tourists
Noting with approval	That 119 UN member states have some form of animal welfare legislation at national level
Understanding	That mankind has obligations toward animal and natural systems
Acknowledging	That mankind greatly depends on their interactions with and usage of animals
Recognizing	That animal abuse jeopardizes environmental preservation and hinders economic and cultural growth
Regretting	That no comprehensive international agreement effectively confronts these abuses
Convinced	That substantial improvements in animal welfare can be ensured through concerted action by all States
Decides	That : <ul style="list-style-type: none">- Animal minimum wage be introduced as a way to guarantee a certain level of animal welfare for animals in the workforce- Stricter legal consequences to law infringement concerning animal cruelty be established- Regular and thorough controls of compliance with the aforementioned provisions be carried out by appointed officials
